DETAILED ACTION

1. The use of the trademark Kevlar has been noted in this application. It should be capitalized wherever it appears and be accompanied by the generic terminology.

Although the use of trademarks is permissible in patent applications, the proprietary nature of the marks should be respected and every effort made to prevent their use in any manner, which might adversely affect their validity as trademarks.

2. Claims 2, 9, and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Use of the trademark Kevlar is indefinite in these claims as it indicates a source of goods and not a specific generic class of material.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 1772

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kalnin (U.S. 3,691,000) in view of Dubowik et al. (U.S. 5,280,091) further in view of Yamato et al. (U.S. 4,451,637).

Kalnin teaches a epoxy matrix material with layers of glass fiber roving and other types of fibers that can be made by using liquid resin in a mold with glass mats that is cured (col. 2, lines 40-65, col. 3, line 40 through col. 4, line 55, col. 7, lines 25-40). Dubowik et al. teaches the use of different epoxy cross linking systems that allow control of the cure time and temperature depending on the equipment and other needs of the formulator, along with the use of glass fiber and other fillers (col. 6, lines 60-69, col. 8, lines 5-25, and Examples 4 and 5. Yamato et al. teaches the use of various inorganic fire retardant fillers in epoxy resin systems (col. 3, lines 15-25). The instant invention claims an epoxy matrix laminate with glass fiber rovings and glass or other fibers where the liquid epoxy resin is molded with the rovings and cured ay relatively low temperatures and long periods of time. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have selected an epoxy curing system suitable for the field production of the composites of Kalnin because of the teachings of Dubowik et al. It further would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have used glass or other fiber filler and inorganic filler to further strengthen the matrix and increase its fire resistance because of the teachings of Dubowik et al. and Yamato et al. (U.S. 4,451,637). Drilling of holes in structural laminates to allow for fasteners is conventional.

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The art show various other epoxy and glass systems.
